

Dear Colleagues and Researchers,

I would like to thank all the physiotherapists and editorial members who are contributing to the development of International Journal of Physiotherapy and Research. We are happy to announce that IJPR is launching its third issue successfully.

There is a progression in the growth of International Journal of Physiotherapy and Research since the inaugural to the present. We are glad to inform that International Journal of Physiotherapy and Research has its recognition in various organizations around the world like Geneva Foundation for Medical Education and Research, PEDro database. We are yet to get more international indexations which will prove beneficial to the authors in the future.

We are thankful to the readers who have sent their valuable suggestions for the development of the journal. The main aim of International Journal of Physiotherapy and Research is to bring the new ideas and concepts of the researchers into limelight and get it recognized internationally which will contribute to the development of Physiotherapy.

International Journal of Physiotherapy and Research is accepting articles from various branches of physiotherapy, clinical case reports and also rare images in clinical practices. We are also welcoming the research oriented physiotherapists to become a part of our team in the future.

Regards,
Mondam Srinivas,
Editor in Chief
IJPR.
